Earth's magnetic influences cause compass needles to vary approx. 8°30' to 14° 30' East from true North as you travel East to West across South Dakota. Outer rim degrees indicate true direction required in air travel. Inner circle illustrates magnetic variation from true North as encountered in land travel.

A Warm Welcome from South Dakota's First Family

This Family Fun Guide is your invitation to visit us this year. You'll find family adventures in every corner of our state, many of them free for the doing. Take your time. Get to know our warm, friendly people. Explore those little out-of-the-way spots that may become the fondest memories of your visit. Discover for yourself, as my family has, the joys of a free-roaming vacation in South Dakota.
